Welcome to the Discerning Diverse Voices Symposium (DDVS) sponsored by the College of Communication and Information Sciences at The University of Alabama. Now in its 14th year, the DDVS is one of our college's signature events that has helped to position C&IS as a leader in diversity, equity, and inclusion at The University of Alabama and among our peers.

Our theme this year, Under Observation: The Conditions of "Being Seen," examines the politics, mechanisms, and modalities of visibility/invisibility as they relate to diversity in the modern information, communication, and media landscapes. We have created opportunities for sharing research and sparking dialog about diversity and inclusion for more than a decade. We are fortunate that the hybrid presentation of this symposium has allowed us to include more voices than before, and I look forward to engaging in renewed conversations with you in person and online.

All of us in C&IS recognize the important role Discerning Diverse Voices plays in providing a platform for students, faculty, and staff to showcase the new knowledge being created in this all-important area of study. Several books, book chapters, and journal articles now in print were originally presented at this symposium. Clearly, we have created a very effective vehicle for showcasing and advancing the good work of scholars in our college and across the nation.

We are deeply indebted to Dr. Miriam Sweeney and Dr. Alyxandra Vesey for providing leadership to the organizing committee for this year's event. Additionally, a special thanks to Dr. Suzanne Horsley for shepherding the event, to Al Cassada for all of their hard work organizing and planning, and to Alexandra Abernathy for making it all happen. The symposium couldn't happen without this team of excellent people and we thank them for their hard work and dedication to this effort.

Thank you for being a part of the activities, and best wishes for an excellent symposium!

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "B. Butler".

DR. MELISSA VILLA-NICHOLAS

The University of Rhode Island

MODERATOR: DR. MIRIAM E. SWEENEY

MELISSA VILLA-NICHOLAS, PH.D., is Assistant Professor in the Graduate School of Library And Information Studies at the University of Rhode Island. Her work focuses on the Latinx histories and practices of information and technology, immigrant information rights, and critical approaches to information science. She is the author of Latinas on the Line: Invisible Labor in Telecommunications (2022), Rutgers University Press, and Data Borders: How Silicon Valley is Building an Industry around Immigrant Data (Forthcoming 2023), University of California Press.

KEYNOTE: DATA BORDERS: HOW SILICON VALLEY IS BUILDING AN INDUSTRY TO "KNOW" IMMIGRANTS

This lecture investigates the emerging state of borderland technology that brings all people into an intimate place of surveillance where data resides and defines inclusion and exclusion to citizenship. Detailing the new trend of biologically mapping undocumented people through biotechnologies, Villa-Nicholas shows how Latinx immigrants are the focus and driving force for surveillance and technology design by Silicon Valley's emerging industry within defense technology manufacturing. A murky network is revealed that gathers data on marginalized communities for purposes of exploitation and control that implicates law enforcement, border patrol, and ICE, but that also pulls in public workers and the public, often without their knowledge or consent. Enriched by interviews of Latinx immigrants living in the borderlands on their daily use of technology, and their caution around surveillance, this work argues that to move beyond a heavily surveilled state that dehumanizes both immigrants and citizens, we must understand how the data is being collected, aggregated, and correlated with artificial intelligence, and push for immigrant and citizen privacy information rights along the border and throughout the United States.

MODERATOR: SANDY PASCUAL

PANELISTS: MS. FELICIA A. SMITH, DR. DARRIN GRIFFIN, MR. DARRELL HARGREAVES, TABITHA VENABLE

Due to their intersectionality in hearing and Deaf communities, children of Deaf adults (CODA) have a rare perspective on communication and diversity. This panel will allow for an opportunity for CODAs who are part of our campus community to “be seen.” Faculty, students, and staff at The University of Alabama who identify as CODAs will participate in this panel, and each will provide their own unique perspectives as to their identity within higher education and Deaf communities. Additionally, a CODA from the Alabama community will share their experiences of their identity and the impact of being raised in the Deaf community and navigating the hearing world.

MODERATOR: DR. BHARAT MEHRA

PANELISTS: GLORIA AKELLO ABURA-MEERDINK, MS. LAURA PITTS,
MS. OZIOMA OMAH, MARIO SALAZAR, LATONYA TAYLOR,
REBA WILLIAMS

This panel provides a venue for six doctoral students across disciplines at the University of Alabama to provide glimpses of their course experiences, perspectives, community projects, and career paths as they were enrolled in CIS 650 (Community-Engaged Scholarship) during fall 2022. Students will also share their reflections of “becoming seen” and navigating turbulent experiences in the academy representing “non-traditional” research and scholarship. In addition, they will highlight lived experiences “under observation” as the diverse “others” (in different ways of intersecting identity markers and social constructs) during recent traumas of racial injustices and social advocacy against police atrocities around the country in their course community scholarship and academic, professional, and personal journeys.

PANEL: UNDER OBSERVATION: POVERTY AND FOOD INSECURITY – A 2023 CLASS INVESTIGATION

MODERATOR: DR. GEORGE L. DANIELS

PANELISTS: MS. DAKARII WILLIAMS, MR. MAURICIO GOMEZ

This semester the MC 413 Mass Communication, Service and Diversity class, a community-engaged learning class in the College of Communication and Information Sciences, is putting an emphasis on diversity of class and specifically the level of poverty within our state, around our nation and around the world. Thanks to the work of students at Brigham Young University who produced a documentary in Fall 2022 on a national hunger relief effort involving the LDS Church, students at the University of Alabama are doing additional research on the status of food insecurity in 10 communities in 2023. Additionally, they are using the Barriers to Prosperity Data Map to identify the poverty status of counties within the state of Alabama. And, during the two weeks, these students will be participating in a global virtual exchange through the “global circles” program sponsored by Soliya. This panel features four students from the MC 413 class who report on their efforts at the local, state, national, and international level.

ROOM 3700

PANEL: WORKING TO MAKE EVERY VOICE VISIBLE

MODERATOR: DR. CHANDRA CLARK

PANELISTS: DR. CHANDRA CLARK, DR. MICHAEL BRUCE, MRS. ANDI GILLEN,
MRS. JOYLYN BOGGS, JUDSON TRIMM

This panel will highlight the advocacy of the Stallings family, of University of Alabama football coach Gene Stallings, with regard to their son, John Mark, who was diagnosed with Down’s Syndrome. The Stallings family used their national platform to advocate and raise money for multiple pre-school programs, (RISE Schools), college programs (Crossing Points at UA and Clemson Life at Clemson University), and adult individual living and work programs (Tuscaloosa’s Eagles’ Wings). Building on the Stallings family’s legacy, this panel will feature a discussion about local disability advocacy work with representatives from the RISE Center at the University of Alabama.
